Lookout tower ruins on Rogers Mt

History:

The Rogers Mt Lookout was built in 1933/34 by the CCC boys out of the Three Forks Camp. The tower was 40 ft high with a cabin at the base for the residents. The tower blew down in November of 1949. The tower looked down on the Van Stone mine. The Van Stone, the largest open pit metal mine in Washington State, produced zinc, lead, copper and silver. It was discovered in 1920.

Cautions:

The upper portion of this trail becomes boggy and difficult to cross during wet periods. Be aware that other trail users may be on foot, on horseback, mountain bike or motorcycle.
